My Favourite Festival

Chinese New Year is one of the most important festivals in China. It is also my favourite festival.

Chinese New Year is associated with several myths and customs. It was traditionally a time to honour deities as well as our ancestors. For most people, Chinese New Year is usually celebrated in January or February.

It is also traditional for every family to clean their homes thoroughly, in order to sweep away all ill-fortune and to welcome incoming good luck. Other festivities include lighting firecrackers and giving red packets to children.

Chinese New Year is a wonderful festival because of its remarkable tradition and delightful customs.
